COVID-19 Vaccines Have Arrived in New Jersey

Vaccines began arriving in New Jersey hospitals this week and the first COVID-19 vaccinations were administered to frontline healthcare workers on Tuesday, December 15th. In the first phase of vaccine distribution, healthcare workers, and long-term care facility residents and staff will be the top priority for vaccinations. The State's vaccination program will become much more robust over the coming weeks as more vaccine shipments arrive. Learn more about how COVID-19 vaccines are being rolled out.
